Dear colleagues and guests,

On behalf of the organizing committee, let me welcome you most cordially to the Prague IDCA Congress (International Digestive Cancer Alliance).

Colorectal carcinoma has traditionally been the most frequent tumorous disease of the digestive tract in our geographical region and its diagnostics and therapy are a major healthcare and socio-economic problem. The congress will focus primarily on tumour prevention, whose effectiveness as yet varies very widely from country to country. We will try to shed some light not only on the purely medical side of the question, but also on the social and political aspects of introducing prevention programmes and integrating them into healthcare systems. An important part of the symposium will be dedicated to surgical and oncological treatment of the more advanced stages of the disease.

I hope that after the demanding professional programme you will find time to visit our charming capital city.

Doc. MUDr Miroslav Zavoral, PhD
